

IN THIS INSTITUTION SOMETHING MORE THAN THEORY IS TAUGHT

Typical Scenes Recently Photographed at the Northern Arizona Normal School, Flagstaff

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

Furniture making is required of all those preparing to be teachers

Scene in the Training School, where in training children, their teachers are also trained

HUNT CONDEMNS TUCSON CONVENTION

Former Governor George W. P. Hunt has condemned the state democratic convention held at Tucson. "In justice to myself and my convictions, in justice to the principles of our progressive constitution and the law of the land I will not at this time voice my approval of the conference," Hunt declared in a signed statement issued to the press. Hunt believes with the great mass of democrats unrepresented at the convention that it is their right to name whom they may to run for office, regardless of the action taken at Tucson, and adds that those candidates who are nominated at the democratic primary in September will have his hearty support. His statement takes the form of a letter to Senator Wm. D. Claypool of Gila county, and reads as follows: "My Dear Senator Claypool: "I feel that I owe it to yourself as the chairman and to the members of the Gila county delegation to the conference at Tucson to congratulate you and your associates for maintaining the policy adopted by the delegation, as I realize that it was a difficult one, under the most trying circumstances. "My views on the direct primary are so well known to you that they need no repetition here. The constitutional convention enacted the ordinance for the first state election, together with a mandate to have the same incorporated into our statutes, which was done, and the direct primary system of choosing candidates for office has been our basic law ever since. It is true that there are some democrats who do not like the direct primary and other progressive features under our constitution, and they have opposed them ever since they were adopted. I believe in the primary, as it is the one great safeguard of the rights of the common people in choosing their public officials. "Calling the conference at Tucson to discuss party measures and a platform was commendable, but there is always the danger that a conference may go too far, as was the case in this one. There is a so-called conservative element in our party, which represents the wealth, if not the votes of the party, which has advocated doing away with the direct primary and returning to the convention system, and changing things to their manner of thinking, and in this conference the opportunity was taken full advantage of. "The great body of democrats were indifferent to the calling of the conference and did not participate in the election of the delegates who attended it, as they felt secure in their basic right to speak for themselves and nominate whom they pleased at the primary election. This right has been invaded, and we have the spectacle of the old convention system again in full force. The grave danger of the action of the conference at Tucson is that it constitutes a precedent, which, if permitted to be followed, will obviously in time repeal our constitutional primary law for the nomination by popular choice of candidates for office. "The conference adopted a splendid platform, with a labor plank the most virile and far-reaching I have ever seen, for which it should be commended. However, I regret to note that the platform does not contain a plank condemning the proposed amendments to the constitution, which strike at popular rights, which I consider a serious defect. "The candidates recommended by the conference are all unobjectionable democrats. However, I believe, as do the great mass of democrats who felt secure that no ticket would be named at Tucson which would deprive them of their right, and who were unrepresented at the conference, that it is their right to name anyone they may deem fit for office, and, so believing, and in justice to myself and my convictions, in justice to the principles of our progressive constitution and the law of the land, I will not at this time voice my approval of the said conference. "But after the primary in September, those candidates who are nominated in accordance with the law of our state, will, of course, have my hearty support. "I have never wavered in my allegiance to the organic law of our state, and to the wishes of the electorate, and I will continue to fight the proposed amendments to the constitution until the people have spoken. I have felt and still feel, that it is more important to defeat them than to seek office. With this as my earnest conviction, I am still making and will continue to make every possible effort to enlighten the people to the menace of the proposed amendments to the constitution. "Trusting that this will make my position plain on this most important question, and with assurance of my kind regards, I am, "Yours very truly, (Signed, "GEO. W. P. HUNT, "Senator William D. Claypool, "Claypool, Arizona."

"The candidates recommended by the conference are all unobjectionable democrats. However, I believe, as do the great mass of democrats who felt secure that no ticket would be named at Tucson which would deprive them of their right, and who were unrepresented at the conference, that it is their right to name anyone they may deem fit for office, and, so believing, and in justice to myself and my convictions, in justice to the principles of our progressive constitution and the law of the land, I will not at this time voice my approval of the said conference. "But after the primary in September, those candidates who are nominated in accordance with the law of our state, will, of course, have my hearty support. "I have never wavered in my allegiance to the organic law of our state, and to the wishes of the electorate, and I will continue to fight the proposed amendments to the constitution until the people have spoken. I have felt and still feel, that it is more important to defeat them than to seek office. With this as my earnest conviction, I am still making and will continue to make every possible effort to enlighten the people to the menace of the proposed amendments to the constitution. "Trusting that this will make my position plain on this most important question, and with assurance of my kind regards, I am, "Yours very truly, (Signed, "GEO. W. P. HUNT, "Senator William D. Claypool, "Claypool, Arizona."

"The candidates recommended by the conference are all unobjectionable democrats. However, I believe, as do the great mass of democrats who felt secure that no ticket would be named at Tucson which would deprive them of their right, and who were unrepresented at the conference, that it is their right to name anyone they may deem fit for office, and, so believing, and in justice to myself and my convictions, in justice to the principles of our progressive constitution and the law of the land, I will not at this time voice my approval of the said conference. "But after the primary in September, those candidates who are nominated in accordance with the law of our state, will, of course, have my hearty support. "I have never wavered in my allegiance to the organic law of our state, and to the wishes of the electorate, and I will continue to fight the proposed amendments to the constitution until the people have spoken. I have felt and still feel, that it is more important to defeat them than to seek office. With this as my earnest conviction, I am still making and will continue to make every possible effort to enlighten the people to the menace of the proposed amendments to the constitution. "Trusting that this will make my position plain on this most important question, and with assurance of my kind regards, I am, "Yours very truly, (Signed, "GEO. W. P. HUNT, "Senator William D. Claypool, "Claypool, Arizona."

COOLEY BANK ROBBER KILLED BY OFFICERS

Immediately following the robbery of the Cooley bank last week a posse was easily formed at Cooley, taking up the chase on horses and in cars. They chased the fleeing criminal for 18 miles east on the Springerville-Cooley road. By that time darkness prevented further trailing so the posse came in for the night, except John Earl, its leader, who stayed on the trail all night, declaring that he would capture his man single handed. The next morning, Tuesday, the posse passed their fugitive, but soon returned and found the trail again. The outlaw had retreated into a canyon at Cole Springs. Here the Cooley posse was joined by another which had been formed at Springerville. It was also discovered here that the bandit had an accomplice. The canyon was surrounded and closely guarded the rest of the day until about 5 o'clock p. m. The pursued man in the meantime had succeeded in getting out of the canyon and giving the posse the slip, staying under cover until dark. When darkness came on the bandits crossed at Sheep's Crossing and headed toward the Blue. The two posses pitched camp at the Crossing, taking up the trail Wednesday morning at daylight. Seventeen miles from Sheep's Crossing the accomplice, whose name is unknown to the Herald, at this time, was overtaken. He gave himself up without resistance. Schultz, however, went on, with three members of the posse, John Earl, Ed Cole and George J. Haynes, dogging his tracks. Haynes was riding in advance of the other two keeping close on Schultz's heels until he came to the Hannigan ranger station. Supposing the bandit had entered the station, he dismounted, tied his horse to a tree and crawled up to the house. He discovered only the ranger leaving the house, however, so returned to his horse and rode over to the Blue lookout tower. As he started in the town unsuspectingly, the hounded Schultz appeared in the doorway and covered his pursuer with his rifle. Haynes was thereupon relieved of his weapons, but very conveniently remembered his official capacity as Forest Ranger and told the bandit he was not on the man hunt. At this stage of the game Cole and Earl rode to the rescue. They called out for any one inside to come out. Haynes came out first followed by his would-be prisoner. Earl then commanded the bandit to put up his hands. The command was then repeated but still the robber failed to comply. Instead, after the second command, the still sullen Schultz started back in the tower presumably to get his rifle. Thereupon both Earl and Cole fired sending five shots through the body of their victim, any one of which would have proved fatal. Schultz died instantly. The shooting occurred about 7:00 o'clock Wednesday evening just before sundown. Inquest on the body of the dead bandit has probably been taken. The accomplice was taken into custody and will no doubt be given a speedy trial.—Snowflake Herald.

Immediately following the robbery of the Cooley bank last week a posse was easily formed at Cooley, taking up the chase on horses and in cars. They chased the fleeing criminal for 18 miles east on the Springerville-Cooley road. By that time darkness prevented further trailing so the posse came in for the night, except John Earl, its leader, who stayed on the trail all night, declaring that he would capture his man single handed. The next morning, Tuesday, the posse passed their fugitive, but soon returned and found the trail again. The outlaw had retreated into a canyon at Cole Springs. Here the Cooley posse was joined by another which had been formed at Springerville. It was also discovered here that the bandit had an accomplice. The canyon was surrounded and closely guarded the rest of the day until about 5 o'clock p. m. The pursued man in the meantime had succeeded in getting out of the canyon and giving the posse the slip, staying under cover until dark. When darkness came on the bandits crossed at Sheep's Crossing and headed toward the Blue. The two posses pitched camp at the Crossing, taking up the trail Wednesday morning at daylight. Seventeen miles from Sheep's Crossing the accomplice, whose name is unknown to the Herald, at this time, was overtaken. He gave himself up without resistance. Schultz, however, went on, with three members of the posse, John Earl, Ed Cole and George J. Haynes, dogging his tracks. Haynes was riding in advance of the other two keeping close on Schultz's heels until he came to the Hannigan ranger station. Supposing the bandit had entered the station, he dismounted, tied his horse to a tree and crawled up to the house. He discovered only the ranger leaving the house, however, so returned to his horse and rode over to the Blue lookout tower. As he started in the town unsuspectingly, the hounded Schultz appeared in the doorway and covered his pursuer with his rifle. Haynes was thereupon relieved of his weapons, but very conveniently remembered his official capacity as Forest Ranger and told the bandit he was not on the man hunt. At this stage of the game Cole and Earl rode to the rescue. They called out for any one inside to come out. Haynes came out first followed by his would-be prisoner. Earl then commanded the bandit to put up his hands. The command was then repeated but still the robber failed to comply. Instead, after the second command, the still sullen Schultz started back in the tower presumably to get his rifle. Thereupon both Earl and Cole fired sending five shots through the body of their victim, any one of which would have proved fatal. Schultz died instantly. The shooting occurred about 7:00 o'clock Wednesday evening just before sundown. Inquest on the body of the dead bandit has probably been taken. The accomplice was taken into custody and will no doubt be given a speedy trial.—Snowflake Herald.

Immediately following the robbery of the Cooley bank last week a posse was easily formed at Cooley, taking up the chase on horses and in cars. They chased the fleeing criminal for 18 miles east on the Springerville-Cooley road. By that time darkness prevented further trailing so the posse came in for the night, except John Earl, its leader, who stayed on the trail all night, declaring that he would capture his man single handed. The next morning, Tuesday, the posse passed their fugitive, but soon returned and found the trail again. The outlaw had retreated into a canyon at Cole Springs. Here the Cooley posse was joined by another which had been formed at Springerville. It was also discovered here that the bandit had an accomplice. The canyon was surrounded and closely guarded the rest of the day until about 5 o'clock p. m. The pursued man in the meantime had succeeded in getting out of the canyon and giving the posse the slip, staying under cover until dark. When darkness came on the bandits crossed at Sheep's Crossing and headed toward the Blue. The two posses pitched camp at the Crossing, taking up the trail Wednesday morning at daylight. Seventeen miles from Sheep's Crossing the accomplice, whose name is unknown to the Herald, at this time, was overtaken. He gave himself up without resistance. Schultz, however, went on, with three members of the posse, John Earl, Ed Cole and George J. Haynes, dogging his tracks. Haynes was riding in advance of the other two keeping close on Schultz's heels until he came to the Hannigan ranger station. Supposing the bandit had entered the station, he dismounted, tied his horse to a tree and crawled up to the house. He discovered only the ranger leaving the house, however, so returned to his horse and rode over to the Blue lookout tower. As he started in the town unsuspectingly, the hounded Schultz appeared in the doorway and covered his pursuer with his rifle. Haynes was thereupon relieved of his weapons, but very conveniently remembered his official capacity as Forest Ranger and told the bandit he was not on the man hunt. At this stage of the game Cole and Earl rode to the rescue. They called out for any one inside to come out. Haynes came out first followed by his would-be prisoner. Earl then commanded the bandit to put up his hands. The command was then repeated but still the robber failed to comply. Instead, after the second command, the still sullen Schultz started back in the tower presumably to get his rifle. Thereupon both Earl and Cole fired sending five shots through the body of their victim, any one of which would have proved fatal. Schultz died instantly. The shooting occurred about 7:00 o'clock Wednesday evening just before sundown. Inquest on the body of the dead bandit has probably been taken. The accomplice was taken into custody and will no doubt be given a speedy trial.—Snowflake Herald.

Immediately following the robbery of the Cooley bank last week a posse was easily formed at Cooley, taking up the chase on horses and in cars. They chased the fleeing criminal for 18 miles east on the Springerville-Cooley road. By that time darkness prevented further trailing so the posse came in for the night, except John Earl, its leader, who stayed on the trail all night, declaring that he would capture his man single handed. The next morning, Tuesday, the posse passed their fugitive, but soon returned and found the trail again. The outlaw had retreated into a canyon at Cole Springs. Here the Cooley posse was joined by another which had been formed at Springerville. It was also discovered here that the bandit had an accomplice. The canyon was surrounded and closely guarded the rest of the day until about 5 o'clock p. m. The pursued man in the meantime had succeeded in getting out of the canyon and giving the posse the slip, staying under cover until dark. When darkness came on the bandits crossed at Sheep's Crossing and headed toward the Blue. The two posses pitched camp at the Crossing, taking up the trail Wednesday morning at daylight. Seventeen miles from Sheep's Crossing the accomplice, whose name is unknown to the Herald, at this time, was overtaken. He gave himself up without resistance. Schultz, however, went on, with three members of the posse, John Earl, Ed Cole and George J. Haynes, dogging his tracks. Haynes was riding in advance of the other two keeping close on Schultz's heels until he came to the Hannigan ranger station. Supposing the bandit had entered the station, he dismounted, tied his horse to a tree and crawled up to the house. He discovered only the ranger leaving the house, however, so returned to his horse and rode over to the Blue lookout tower. As he started in the town unsuspectingly, the hounded Schultz appeared in the doorway and covered his pursuer with his rifle. Haynes was thereupon relieved of his weapons, but very conveniently remembered his official capacity as Forest Ranger and told the bandit he was not on the man hunt. At this stage of the game Cole and Earl rode to the rescue. They called out for any one inside to come out. Haynes came out first followed by his would-be prisoner. Earl then commanded the bandit to put up his hands. The command was then repeated but still the robber failed to comply. Instead, after the second command, the still sullen Schultz started back in the tower presumably to get his rifle. Thereupon both Earl and Cole fired sending five shots through the body of their victim, any one of which would have proved fatal. Schultz died instantly. The shooting occurred about 7:00 o'clock Wednesday evening just before sundown. Inquest on the body of the dead bandit has probably been taken. The accomplice was taken into custody and will no doubt be given a speedy trial.—Snowflake Herald.

Immediately following the robbery of the Cooley bank last week a posse was easily formed at Cooley, taking up the chase on horses and in cars. They chased the fleeing criminal for 18 miles east on the Springerville-Cooley road. By that time darkness prevented further trailing so the posse came in for the night, except John Earl, its leader, who stayed on the trail all night, declaring that he would capture his man single handed. The next morning, Tuesday, the posse passed their fugitive, but soon returned and found the trail again. The outlaw had retreated into a canyon at Cole Springs. Here the Cooley posse was joined by another which had been formed at Springerville. It was also discovered here that the bandit had an accomplice. The canyon was surrounded and closely guarded the rest of the day until about 5 o'clock p. m. The pursued man in the meantime had succeeded in getting out of the canyon and giving the posse the slip, staying under cover until dark. When darkness came on the bandits crossed at Sheep's Crossing and headed toward the Blue. The two posses pitched camp at the Crossing, taking up the trail Wednesday morning at daylight. Seventeen miles from Sheep's Crossing the accomplice, whose name is unknown to the Herald, at this time, was overtaken. He gave himself up without resistance. Schultz, however, went on, with three members of the posse, John Earl, Ed Cole and George J. Haynes, dogging his tracks. Haynes was riding in advance of the other two keeping close on Schultz's heels until he came to the Hannigan ranger station. Supposing the bandit had entered the station, he dismounted, tied his horse to a tree and crawled up to the house. He discovered only the ranger leaving the house, however, so returned to his horse and rode over to the Blue lookout tower. As he started in the town unsuspectingly, the hounded Schultz appeared in the doorway and covered his pursuer with his rifle. Haynes was thereupon relieved of his weapons, but very conveniently remembered his official capacity as Forest Ranger and told the bandit he was not on the man hunt. At this stage of the game Cole and Earl rode to the rescue. They called out for any one inside to come out. Haynes came out first followed by his would-be prisoner. Earl then commanded the bandit to put up his hands. The command was then repeated but still the robber failed to comply. Instead, after the second command, the still sullen Schultz started back in the tower presumably to get his rifle. Thereupon both Earl and Cole fired sending five shots through the body of their victim, any one of which would have proved fatal. Schultz died instantly. The shooting occurred about 7:00 o'clock Wednesday evening just before sundown. Inquest on the body of the dead bandit has probably been taken. The accomplice was taken into custody and will no doubt be given a speedy trial.—Snowflake Herald.

Immediately following the robbery of the Cooley bank last week a posse was easily formed at Cooley, taking up the chase on horses and in cars. They chased the fleeing criminal for 18 miles east on the Springerville-Cooley road. By that time darkness prevented further trailing so the posse came in for the night, except John Earl, its leader, who stayed on the trail all night, declaring that he would capture his man single handed. The next morning, Tuesday, the posse passed their fugitive, but soon returned and found the trail again. The outlaw had retreated into a canyon at Cole Springs. Here the Cooley posse was joined by another which had been formed at Springerville. It was also discovered here that the bandit had an accomplice. The canyon was surrounded and closely guarded the rest of the day until about 5 o'clock p. m. The pursued man in the meantime had succeeded in getting out of the canyon and giving the posse the slip, staying under cover until dark. When darkness came on the bandits crossed at Sheep's Crossing and headed toward the Blue. The two posses pitched camp at the Crossing, taking up the trail Wednesday morning at daylight. Seventeen miles from Sheep's Crossing the accomplice, whose name is unknown to the Herald, at this time, was overtaken. He gave himself up without resistance. Schultz, however, went on, with three members of the posse, John Earl, Ed Cole and George J. Haynes, dogging his tracks. Haynes was riding in advance of the other two keeping close on Schultz's heels until he came to the Hannigan ranger station. Supposing the bandit had entered the station, he dismounted, tied his horse to a tree and crawled up to the house. He discovered only the ranger leaving the house, however, so returned to his horse and rode over to the Blue lookout tower. As he started in the town unsuspectingly, the hounded Schultz appeared in the doorway and covered his pursuer with his rifle. Haynes was thereupon relieved of his weapons, but very conveniently remembered his official capacity as Forest Ranger and told the bandit he was not on the man hunt. At this stage of the game Cole and Earl rode to the rescue. They called out for any one inside to come out. Haynes came out first followed by his would-be prisoner. Earl then commanded the bandit to put up his hands. The command was then repeated but still the robber failed to comply. Instead, after the second command, the still sullen Schultz started back in the tower presumably to get his rifle. Thereupon both Earl and Cole fired sending five shots through the body of their victim, any one of which would have proved fatal. Schultz died instantly. The shooting occurred about 7:00 o'clock Wednesday evening just before sundown. Inquest on the body of the dead bandit has probably been taken. The accomplice was taken into custody and will no doubt be given a speedy trial.—Snowflake Herald.

Immediately following the robbery of the Cooley bank last week a posse was easily formed at Cooley, taking up the chase on horses and in cars. They chased the fleeing criminal for 18 miles east on the Springerville-Cooley road. By that time darkness prevented further trailing so the posse came in for the night, except John Earl, its leader, who stayed on the trail all night, declaring that he would capture his man single handed. The next morning, Tuesday, the posse passed their fugitive, but soon returned and found the trail again. The outlaw had retreated into a canyon at Cole Springs. Here the Cooley posse was joined by another which had been formed at Springerville. It was also discovered here that the bandit had an accomplice. The canyon was surrounded and closely guarded the rest of the day until about 5 o'clock p. m. The pursued man in the meantime had succeeded in getting out of the canyon and giving the posse the slip, staying under cover until dark. When darkness came on the bandits crossed at Sheep's Crossing and headed toward the Blue. The two posses pitched camp at the Crossing, taking up the trail Wednesday morning at daylight. Seventeen miles from Sheep's Crossing the accomplice, whose name is unknown to the Herald, at this time, was overtaken. He gave himself up without resistance. Schultz, however, went on, with three members of the posse, John Earl, Ed Cole and George J. Haynes, dogging his tracks. Haynes was riding in advance of the other two keeping close on Schultz's heels until he came to the Hannigan ranger station. Supposing the bandit had entered the station, he dismounted, tied his horse to a tree and crawled up to the house. He discovered only the ranger leaving the house, however, so returned to his horse and rode over to the Blue lookout tower. As he started in the town unsuspectingly, the hounded Schultz appeared in the doorway and covered his pursuer with his rifle. Haynes was thereupon relieved of his weapons, but very conveniently remembered his official capacity as Forest Ranger and told the bandit he was not on the man hunt. At this stage of the game Cole and Earl rode to the rescue. They called out for any one inside to come out. Haynes came out first followed by his would-be prisoner. Earl then commanded the bandit to put up his hands. The command was then repeated but still the robber failed to comply. Instead, after the second command, the still sullen Schultz started back in the tower presumably to get his rifle. Thereupon both Earl and Cole fired sending five shots through the body of their victim, any one of which would have proved fatal. Schultz died instantly. The shooting occurred about 7:00 o'clock Wednesday evening just before sundown. Inquest on the body of the dead bandit has probably been taken. The accomplice was taken into custody and will no doubt be given a speedy trial.—Snowflake Herald.

NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES

This afternoon a party of Normal people including the geology class, is leaving for a field trip to Grand Canyon. The geology class will go in President McMullen's and Mr. Gunter's cars. Tomorrow morning several faculty members including Mr. McMullen and Mr. Drake will join the party. The class plans to camp tonight at the camp grounds on the rim of the Canyon. Tomorrow they will go down the trail to the river, studying the formations as they go and camp that night by the river. They will climb back to the rim by the other trail. They will spend several days on this trip, probably returning Tuesday.

Tonight the Y. W. C. A. girls are giving a carnival dance in the auditorium. Features of the carnival will be a jitney dance, roulette wheel, refreshments and various booths of chance.

Last week several of the girls entertained the school at the regular student body one act playlet on Wednesday by impersonating the boys, Miss Osborne impersonated Miss Lowitzki. The Misses Crosby, Michelsbach, Roberts and Walker impersonated Messrs. Challenger, Thornton, Hamblin and Rhoton.

These girls were very clever in their impersonations. The boys have decided that revenge is sweet and are planning to return a similar performance soon.

The boys gave the regular Wednesday chapel period play this week. Their act was taken from "A Mid-Summer Night's Dream." This was one of the best programs given this year. The boys who took the parts were George Anderson, Elmer Jackson, Roland Hamblin, Melvin Yeager, Walter Boice and John Hamblin.

The Misses Thelma Pexton, Ruth Johnson and Jenny Willard are the guests of Miss Wheeler this week. They arrived last Sunday from Cooley where they have been teaching since last Christmas when they graduated from the Normal.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

An examination for the position of clerk or carrier in the post office will be held in this city on June 17, 1922.

Applicants must be citizens of the United States between the ages of 18 and 45 years on the date of the examination.

Age and height and weight requirements are waived in the case of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines.

Applicants must be physically sound and male applicants must not be less than 5 feet 4 inches in height in bare feet and weigh not less than 125 pounds without overcoat or hat.

For application blanks and further information relative to this examination address:

Local secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, Flagstaff, Arizona.

INSTRUMENTS RECORDED

Administrators' deed, George L. Platt, administrator, to S. F. Rosser. Quit claim deeds, R. J. Aray to Marion T. Hainey, Lila M. Perrin and wife to Chas. E. Burton, (3).

Patents, United States to Sylvester Groves, Robert E. Dugan, (3).

Warranty deeds, Valley bank to Chas. E. Burton, Francis Montoya and wife, to Tomas Beja, Arizona Central bank to F. E. Browning, Emmett M. Ennis and wife to Erie M. Polson, Claude C. Bly to Lyda Wright Bly, Carrie A. Phillips to Moses Anspach.

Administratrix deed, Philomena Babbitt to Francis Montoya.

Warranty deeds, C. B. Wilson and wife to Mary Mars Perkins; Mary Mars Perkins to C. B. Wilson.

A CHEERFUL GIVER

A colored revival was in full blast, and one old fellow was exhorting the people to contribute generously. "Look what de Lawd's done fo' you, all, brethren!" he shouted. "Give Him a portion of all you has. Give Him a tenth. A tenth belongs to de Lawd!" "Amen!" yelled a perspiring member of the congregation, overcome by emotion. "Glory to de Lawd! Give Him mo. Give Him a twentieth!"

New Brands Applied for May 13, 1922

Brand	Earmark	Location of Brand	Name of Applicant; Post Office Address
L	∞	C left ribs	George Riley, Redington, Arizona.
H	∞	H left shoulder	A. W. Marshall, Buckeye, Arizona.
M	∞	C right shoulder	Claude W. Chivers, Williams, Arizona.
X	∞	H right shoulder	Irl H. Vogel, Roosevelt, Arizona.
Y	∞	C left hip	Mrs. R. M. Grantham, Jr., Roosevelt, Arizona.
U	∞	H left shoulder	A. L. Embury, St. Johns, Arizona.
7	∞	C left ribs	John W. Norton, Tucson, Arizona.
6	∞	H left shoulder	John W. Norton, Tucson, Arizona.
10	∞	C left ribs	Careman & Law, Dome, Arizona.
11	∞	H left shoulder	Paula Huck Uihlein, Kirkland, Arizona.
12	∞	C left hip	Mrs. M. E. West, Dewey, Arizona.
13	∞	H left thigh

Commercial Cafe Special Sunday Chicken Dinner $1.00

SOUP—Cream of Chicken with Rice.
RELISHES—Head Lettuce, Sliced Tomatoes, Cucumbers, Ripe Olives.
Mashed Potatoes.
Roast Chicken With Celery Dressing.
DRINKS—Coffee, tea or milk.
DESSERT—Vanilla ice cream, chocolate cake.

Get an Abstract of Title to Your Property

—Having taken over the records and business of the Coconino County Abstract Company, I am now prepared to make complete abstracts showing just how your title stands. Do it now—it is important!

T. E. PULLIAM, REAL ESTATE and INSURANCE At C. B. Wilson's office, Flagstaff.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heart-felt thanks to our neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the sickness and death of our dear little Harlan and especially do we thank them all for the many beautiful floral offerings. May God bless each and every one of our prayer.
MR. AND MRS. DAN WILLIAMS AND FAMILY

Give The Sun Your Job Printing.